*A French
chocolatier pioneer*

A little history

Chocolate was brought to France in 1615 by Queen Anne of Austria, wife of King Louis XIII. At the time, chocolate was reserved exclusively for the elite. It wasn't until the 19th century that it spread to the masses.

In 1814, Louis Parès built the first industrial chocolate factory, Cantaloup Cantala, in Arles-sur-Tech in southern France. Later, after a flood, the plant was moved to the Orles site near Perpignan.

In 1962, the chocolate company was bought by Georges Poirrier and became Cantalou. Finally in 1989, several years after its acquisition by the CÉMOI brand, the company became CÉMOI.

TRANSPARENCE

CACAO CÉMOI

The Transparence Cacao program is based on 4 founding priorities of quality that cover every aspect of sustainable development :

Food quality Traceability

A chocolate of which we know its history : from the origin of the cocoa bean to its manufacture process.

Quality aroma

A chocolate with subtle and delicate aromas.

Planters' quality life

A chocolate that ensures quality of life for the planter so that he can support his family and reinvest in his work.

Environmental quality

A chocolate that contributes to protecting the environment.

Quality: The core of the program
